

Spring Fest

Student Ambassador Mary, left with Peer Mentor Matty at the Spring Fest. Clark College/Jenny Shadley

'Twas the week before finals

Clark students were stressed

So, they chilled with games and alpacas

At Clark's annual Spring Fest.

Stress levels are high as Clark students are focused on studying for finals, writing papers, completing what they started so many months—or even years—ago.

Clark's Activities Programming Board (APB) to the rescue with Spring Fest. Students, faculty, and staff gathered near Anderson Fountain and the grass near the Chime Tower for fun activities and games—all for free.

Students played and destressed in many ways:

- Climbed a rock wall
- Played on various inflatables including human foosball and hungry hippo
- Raced each other through the giant obstacle course
- Played giant Jenga and Connect Four
- Tried out the EZ beats drum battle
- Got sprayed-on temporary tattoos
- Enjoyed free ice cream treats
- Hugged and kissed therapy alpacas Napoleon and Jean-Pierre
- Got your photos taken with the roving photo booth
- And much more

Running Start students Callan Bixler and Lucille Ware sat on a bench eating ice cream. They had already played a game of giant Jenga and hugged the therapy alpacas. Finishing their ice cream, they headed to the bounce area before returning to studying for finals.

Clark College/Jenny Shadley

Clark College/Jenny Shadley

Clark College/Jenny Shadley

Clark College/Jenny Shadley

Clark College/Susan Parrish

Clark College/Jenny Shadley

Clark College/Susan Parrish

Clark College/Susan Parrish

Clark College/Susan Parrish